Excerpt from The Scottish Home Rule Debate of 19th and 20th February, 1890: Analysis of the Divisions and Remarks on the Debate; Also Sir Archibald Alison's Article on the Old Scottish Parliament, C. C. C The humanity of the present times has long and energetically contended with the natural apprehensions of the English lawyers and judges, to give the right of being defended by counsel to prisoners charged with felony. It is singular that this privilege, often of vital importance in doubtful cases, has been established for nearly three centuries in the Scottish law; and that by Special statute, not only is the accused in all cases entitled to be heard at full length by counsel on the evidence, and to have the last word in the debate, but in the event of his being unable.
