Forgotten Books, United States, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The Latter-Day Saints Millennial Star, Vol. 85: June 14, 1923 I am from all eternity. I have existed before all ages. You consider in me only the person who speaks to you, and who has appeared to you within a particular time. But besides this human nature, which ye think ye know, there is in me a divine and eternal nature. Both, united, subsist together in my person. Abraham knew how to distinguish them. He adored me as his God, and desired me as his Savior. He has seen me in my eternity, and he predicted my coming into the world. To these comments Dr. Clarke adds some of his own on verse 59, as follows: It appears that the Jews understood him (jesus) as asserting his Godhead, and, supposing him to be a blasphemer, they proceeded to stone him according to the law (lev. 24: For another text in which Jesus asserted his divinity, read John 10: 31, where these words are written: I and my Father are one. It is observed by the reader that the word my which occurs in this passage is printed in italics, which call attention to the fact that it was supplied by the translators and was not in the original. Now, omitting that word, the essence of the Lord's claim is that he and the Eternal Father, or God over all, are one. Jesus did not mean that in his human nature, with its limitations and frailties, he was one with the Father, but that in his spiritual nature and attributes he is God, like the Father, without beginning of days nor end of years. There are many Christians...
